

Introducing the OVRDC

The Ohio Valley Regional Development Commission (OVRDC) is a public Regional Planning Commission which coordinates federal, state, and local resources to encourage community and economic development in twelve southern Ohio counties: Adams, Brown, Clermont, Fayette, Gallia, Highland, Jackson, Lawrence, Pike, Ross, Scioto and Vinton.

Established in 1967, OVRDC serves as a Local Development District (LDD) for the Appalachian Regional Commission (ARC) and as an Economic Development District (EDD) for the U.S. Department of Commerce, Economic Development Administration (EDA).

The OVRDC is governed by a Full Commission of more than 175 officials who meet semi-annually (March and September). Members include representatives of county and local governments, educational organizations, minority community and the private sector. Membership in each county is referred to as a County Caucus. This Caucus serves as the focus for local project planning.

The routine oversight of the OVRDC is provided by an Executive Committee with representation from all twelve OVRDC counties, both public and private sectors; including the cities of Portsmouth and Chillicothe; and the business, education, and minority community. The Executive Committee's monthly meetings are open to the public.

The OVRDC receives financial support from a combination of federal and state grants and local service contracts. The twelve member counties pay annual contributions to the OVRDC, with contributions based on each county's population according to the U.S. Census Bureau.

This brochure summarizes the Revolving Loan Fund (RLF) programs of the OVRDC.
